PREFATORY.

This is the first number of what is intended to be an annual publication. In its pages will be found, in convenient shape for reference, facts—generally troublesome to find—in regard to events and official persons and matters, prominent in the affairs of Arkansas, generally deemed useful and worthy of preservation. It is by no means perfect. It would be easy and pleasant to swell the volume—perhaps not profitable—but if the necessity for further enterprize in this direction exists, it will be developed and guaged by the alacrity with which the benefits of these pages are availed of.

FACTS AND STATISTICS.

HISTORICAL, COLONIAL, FEDERAL, TERRITORIAL, STATE, DISTRICT AND COUNTY.

Ferdinand De Soto, a Spaniard, discoverer of the Mississippi, reached its banks in 1539, at Quizquiz, an indian town, as is supposed, about thirty miles below the mouth of the Arkansas river. After wandering, chiefly in the valley of the Arkansas river, for more than two years, in fruitless search of Gold, the great leader, dauntless to all else than the King of Terrors, returned to Guachoya, near the first named place, to die, and receive sepulture in the Great river. Juan Muscoso succeeded in command, and after a repetition of western exploration as far as New Mexico, returned to the Arkansas, built boats, and fought his way down the Mississippi, finally reaching haven at Tampico, Mexico.

Fathers Marquette and Jolliet, French Catholic Missionaries, first saw the Mississippi in 1673, in the summer of which year they descended in pirogues to the mouth of the Arkansas. Great and good men were these noble soldiers of the Lord. Each made a map of the route to that point, locating and naming the tribes and villages visited and heard of. Marquette's map is still extant. Jolliet's map and journal were lost by the overturning of a canoe in the St. Lawrence Rapids, during his return to Montreal. On Marquette's map, a fac simile of which we have, the name "Akansea" is written opposite the mouth of the Arkansas river. This is commonly supposed to denote the site of a village of that name, on the East bank of the Mississippi. The better opinion, formed from an inspection of the map, is, that this writing was intended to denote the name of the Akansea river; and that the village placed on the east side of the Mississippi, belonged to the Mitchigamea, who had several villages hereabouts.

Before the loss of Jolliet's MSS., they were exhibited to and inspected by Robert Cavalier de la Salle, commander at Ft. Frontenac, where Jolliet stopped on his return to Canada. La Salle was the first to identify the Great River with that discovered by De Soto; and he conceived the plan of acquiring vast wealth from traffic in and transfer to Europe of skins, wool and fur of the Buffalo and wild animals of this vast region, through an exclusive monopoly of the Mississippi Valley. He was successful in obtaining a patent covering all the country on the Mississippi from the French King. After various delays, he at length descended the Mississippi, having in company the Sieur De Tonti, in 1682; and on the 3d March, of that year, reached the limits of Marquette and Jolliet's explorations, at "Akansa," a village which his biographers locate on the right bank of the Mississippi. The Akansa tribes are described as not resembling the indians of the north, "who are sad and severe in temper." "These," he says, "are better made, honest, liberal and gay." He planted a cross here on the 14th of March, inscribed with the arms of the King of France, taking possession of the country in his name. On the 17th, continuing his voyage, he "passed two more Akansa towns," and proceeding, reached the Gulf of Mexico on the 19th April, 1682. Thence he reascended the river and reported his discovery to France, where the whole course of the Mississippi was thus made known in 1682.

In 1683, La Salle again left France with a naval expedition, well equipped with arms, agricultural implements and animals, and accompanied by a large force of soldiers, colonists and mechanics, intending to find the mouth of the Mississippi, ascend and carry out his magnificent projects. Unfortunately, however, the fleet passed the mouth of that river, and the expedition was landed on the present coast of Texas, near the mouth of the Guadalupe. Three or four years passed amid struggles with the fierce natives, disasters, dissensions and troubles, and fruitless search of the Great River. Until finally he determined, with a small escort, to make an overland trip to Canada for succor, by way of Akansa. On the route he was assassinated by one of his men, in 1687, near the present site of Washington, Texas. La Salle was in no wise inferior to any of the great Spanish commanders who preceded him in American discovery. Father Douay, and a very few others of his escort, were able to make their way safely. These, after surmounting many difficulties made their way safely through the wilderness, to the Akansa river village, where they found a royal cross and two Frenchmen, placed there as an intermediate station, by Tonti, who had descended the Mississippi a second time in expectation of meeting La Salle, coming with his fleet from France.

From this time, the lower valley of the Mississippi was in continued possession of France, until the transfer of Louisiana to Spain. The annals of the colonists who settled in the present limits of Arkansas, are peaceful, quiet and happy, the most notable events with which that part of the province was connected, being that the Arkansas country was for a time a part of the royal grant to Crozat, and afterwards to John Law, and the reports of its exuberant fertility of all wealth producing resources, formed no inconsiderable part of the inducements, held out in the Mississippi scheme which he invented, and in which many fortunes foundered. It is sufficient now to elucidate the title of the United States, to the Louisiana purchase, by saying briefly, that France by the Treaty of Fontainbleau transferred the country to Spain, November 3d, 1762; by the Treaty of Ildefonso, October 1, 1800, Louisiana was retroceded to France; and by the Treaty of Paris, April 30, 1803, was ceded by France to the United States.

The occupation of the territory was directed by act of Congress, October 31, 1803; and the Louisiana purchase was divided by Congress into two territories—one called the territory of Orleans, out of which shortly afterwards, the State of Louisiana was principally formed; and the District of Louisiana, comprehending Missouri and Arkansas, which was created by act of Congress of March 26, 1804. By this act, the executive, legislative and judicial authority of the territorial governor and judges of Indiana Territory was extended over the district. These officers were authorized and empowered to establish inferior courts and prescribe their jurisdiction, and to make all necessary laws; and the superior judges of Indiana were required to hold two courts annually in the new district. By act of March 3, 1805, the title of district was changed to Territory of Louisiana; the legislative authority being vested in a governor and three judges, with powers as in the act of 1804. The territorial organization took place July 4th, 1805. Upon the admission by Congress of the State of Louisiana, the name of Louisiana Territory was changed to Missouri Territory, by act of June 4, 1812.

On the 2d of March, 1819, Congress passed an act to establish the Territory of Arkansas, to take effect from and after July 4th, 1819. The Seat of Government was temporarily established at Arkansas Post. In 1821 it was removed to Little Rock, where it has since remained.* On the 16th of

*During the Civil War, the Seat of Government was temporarily removed to Washington, in Hempstead County.

June, 1836, the State of Arkansas was admitted into the Union, the people of the territory having by their representatives in convention, adopted a Constitution and form of Government, on the 30th of January of that year. On the 1st day of June, 1861, a convention of delegates adopted what is called the Constitution of that year. On the 19th day of January, 1864, a so-called convention adopted what is called the Constitution of that year. On the 11th day of February, 1868, another so-called convention adopted the Constitution of 1868. Again, on the 7th day of September, 1874, the existing Constitution of the State was adopted, by a convention of delegates of the people.

*W. K. Sebastian was expelled from the United States Senate on suspicion of sympathy with the rebellion of 1861. In 1878 the resolution of expulsion was reversed by the Senate. Sebastian was elected for the term ending March 4, 1865, but did not occupy his seat after the winter session of 1860-61.

†Both seats were unoccupied or vacant for the remainder of the terms of Sebastian and Mitchel after 4th March, 1861.

During the first session of the (Murphy) Legislature of 1864 Elisha Baxter, on 2d May, 1864; Wm. M. Fishback, on May 5, and W. D. Snow, on December 30, were respectively elected to the Senate for the terms ending March 4, 1865, and March 4, 1867. None of them were admitted.

Charles B. Mitchel and Robert W. Johnson in 1862 were elected Confederate States Senators and served as such. Mitchel died Sept. 10, 1864, and A. H. Garland was elected to his vacancy. Johnson and Garland served until the fall of the Confederacy.

Jno. T. Jones and Andrew Hunter were elected Senators by the Legislature of 1866. Hunter resigned and A. H. Garland was elected. All were denied admission by the Senate.

CHRONOLOGY.

1809. January 9. First treaty with the Lower Cherokees, who desired to emigrate to Arkansaw. Census of the Cherokees in Arkansaw provided to be taken in June, 1818. Treaty, 8th July, 1817. First treaty with the Quapaws, August 24, 1818; ratified by the President January 5, 1819. This treaty recognizes and receives the cession of Quapaw territory extending also east of the Mississippi.

1818. September 25. Treaty with Osages of Arkansas. The Osages and Quapaws were the chief inhabitants of the present territory of Arkansas before the United States became possessed of the country. The former occupied the northwest quarter of the present State, the latter the southeast quarter. The Cherokees, from the East, interloped and roamed in the country between them. There were some Shawnee and Delaware settlements in the northea tern part of the present State.

1819. United States expedition under Major S. H. Long passed up the Arkansas River, on the way to the Rocky Mountains.

1819. November. Cherokees removed north of the Arkansas, under charge of Major R. Lewis.

1820. January 1. Gov. James Miller arrived at Arkansas Post by United States keelboat Arkansas, seventy days from Pittsburg.

1820. February 7. First Legislature met in special session.

1820. March 11	Arkansas Post, Cadron, Clark and Hempstead Court Houses and White River, (Montgomery's Point) were the only Post Offices at Territorial organization. Little Rock Post Office was established March 18.
1820. March 31.	Steamer Comet, Capt. Byrne, arrived at Arkansas Post from New Orleans, in eight days—149 running hours—being the first steamer to enter the Arkansas.
1820. June 24.	Mail route established between Arkansas Post and Chickasaw Bluff (Memphis.)
1820. July 1.	Steamer Maid of Orleans, arrived at Post of Arkansas in thirteen days from New Orleans.
1820. June 28.	Legislature established county site of Pulaski County at Cadron. [We have been unable to learn the exact location of the ancient county seat.]
1820. October 12.	Legislature chose Little Rock as the future site of the capital.
	During the year 1820 a large portion of the original Territory was ceded to the Choctaws by treaty.
1821.	Attempt made by meeting at Little Rock to change name of that place to Arkopolis. The new name never came into use.
	In May and June Post Offices were established at Batesville and Helena.

1821. December 24.	Arkansas River frozen over for a week.
1822. March 16.	Steamer Eagle, Capt. Morris, arrived at Little Rock, seventeen days from New Orleans—the first to reach that point. She proceeded to within twelve miles of Dwight, Cherokee Mission.

1822. April 9.	The steamer Robert Thompson, Capt. Dohrman, arrived at Little Rock and proceeded to (being the first to reach) Ft. Smith.
1822. May 13.	Terrible tornado at Little Rock.
1822. June 10.	Arkansas River at Little Rock higher than at any time since 1814.
1822. Sept. 22-23.	Slight frosts recorded at Little Rock.
1824. January 23.	Congress made appropriation for military road from Memphis.
1824. November 15.	The Quapaw Indians ceded territory between Saline and Arkansas Rivers, and between line due south from point of the Little Rock to the Mississippi River.
1825. March 18.	Arkansas River within six inches of high water mark of 1822.
1825. May 31.	George Izard, Governor, vice Miller, resigned, arrived at Little Rock.
	In May Congress, established a new western boundary line for the Territory, commencing forty miles west of southwest corner of Missouri; thence due south to Red River, and thence with the channel to Louisiana line.
1826. May.	Arkansas River eight inches higher than ever known.
1827. October 29.	Duel between Robert Crittenden and H. W. Conway, in Mississippi, opposite mouth White River.
1828. January.	Cherokees and Creek Indians, from Georgia, arrived. Capt. P. Pennywit, of the steamer Facility, brought the Creeks.
1828. November 22.	Gov. Izard died at Little Rock.
1829.	Congress authorized the election of all officers of the Territory except Governor by the people.

COMPARATIVE STATISTICS.

We have not thought it best to swell the size of our first number with tabular areas of figures in regard to the productive wealth and capacity of Arkansas as an agricultural State. We are content to analyze the report of the United States Commissioner of Agriculture (the impartiality of which no one will question), for 1876, the latest accessible. This shows, by comparison with the fourteen states of Maryland, Virginia, West Virginia, Kentucky, Missouri, North Carolina, South Carolina, Georgia, Florida, Alabama, Mississippi, Louisiana, Texas and Tennessee, the relative standing of Arkansas in the production, productive capacity, and value of the several staple and leading articles and animals grown and raised in all these states. In the article of cotton, comparison is made with the last nine of the states named. We present this analysis below. The relative standing of Arkansas is shown by the figures in each column:

ARTICLES.	Quantity raised 1876	Total Value.	Quantity per Acre.	Value pr. bu., lb. or ton.	Value per Acre.

*Texas, 2.15, Arkansas, 2.20, acres to the bale.

At first sight this does not strike the eye as being a favorable showing. But when it is recollected that Arkansas ranks twelfth in population of the fifteen states named, it is found to be indeed an admirable exhibit. One, too, from which a most profitable lesson can be drawn by our farmers, if carefully studied; and one which, people looking for new homes to engage in agriculture, may well ponder, before settling in any other Southern State. Let us examine the statement.

Under two heads only does Arkansas fall below the ratio of her population, twelfth; these two are in the total value of oats raised, and number of milch cows.

Under seven heads only does Arkansas fall as low as the ratio of her population, viz: In the quantity of tobacco, horses and mules raised, the quantity per acre of corn and potatoes, and the value per acre of corn and hay produced.

In all other particulars the rank of Arkansas is shown to be above the ratio of her population.

She is first in the quantity of hay and tobacco, and second in cotton raised per acre; third in the quantity per acre of oats, and value per pound and per acre of tobacco produced; fourth in the number of hogs; fifth in the quantity of cotton, quantity per acre of rye raised, and number of acres devoted to cotton, value per bushel of rye raised, and per acre of rye and oats; sixth in the quantity of tobacco, horses and mules, and total value of tobacco, and value per acre of hay raised; seventh in the quantity of wheat, and total value of hogs raised; eighth in the quantity of corn, rye and potatoes, and total value of mules raised, and the value per bushel (or ton) of oats, potatoes and hay, and in the value per acre of hay raised; ninth in the quantity of wheat, and total value of potatoes and horses; tenth in the number of cows and sheep, and in the total value of corn and rye and sheep, and average value of mules and oxen; eleventh in the quantity of oats and oxen, average value of sheep, and value per bushel and acre of wheat, and total value of oxen.

Indeed we doubt if there is another state in the Union, which can stand such favorable comparison, at all points, with fourteen other states as similarly situated in soil, climate and productions, and covering so vast an area.

There are one or two points to which we wish to direct the especial attention of our farmers: The exhibit in regard to hay and tobacco—two most profitable items of agricultural production. In both we are shown to produce the largest quantity to the acre of any Southern State; and in the second rank as the third State, and in competition among others with Maryland, the Virginias, Missouri and Kentucky!

New comers will be slow to find fault with Arkansas, while awaiting the growth and maturity of their first crop, because the price of corn, wheat and pork is as low or nearly so, as the ratio of our population. The figures respecting potatoes, horses, cattle, sheep and hogs, point the attention of farmers to where improvement is needed.

FEDERAL CENSUS AND APPORTIONMENT.

The Federal tenth census will be taken during the year 1880. Trustworthy estimates forecast a population of over 46,000,000, as its result. Assuming this as correct, under the present ratio of representation, the next Federal House of Representatives will consist of 359 members, allotted the states as follows:

*County Clerks.

Entered According to Law, by Wm. E. Woodruff, Jr., in the Office of the Librarian of Congress.

ADDENDA.

Clayton County—Was created at the date stated on page 21 for Clay County. The name was changed to Clay by act of December 6, 1875.

Sarber County—Was created at the date stated on page 21 for Logan. The name was changed to Logan by act of December 14, 1875.

Judge Dillon's name, page 18, should be under head "United States Circuit Court," etc., in the paragraph preceding, instead of "United States District Court."

Table of County Officers—A. A. Couch, Coroner, and W. A. Armstrong, Surveyor, have been elected in Craighead County since table was printed. Hiram Davis, Judge of Washington County Court, is recently deceased.

Post Offices—The following post offices have been established since the list on pages 32, etc., was printed, viz.: Aplin, in Perry County; Boone, in Boone; Bowen's Ridge, in Jackson; Cove Creek, in Newton; Cossatot, in Sevier; Cross Roads, in Washington; Delaney, in Madison; Dixie, in Perry; Dodd's, in Grant, Dalton, in Madison; Eola, Fulton; Excelsior, Crittenden; Georgia, Pike; Grassy Flat, Holstead, Perkin's Store, Pulaski; Hermitage, Bradley; Iron Spring, Montgomery; Moonhill, Newton, Muddy Flat, Howard; Onyx, Yell; Overt, White; Poplar Bluff Lawrence; Ramsey, Carroll; Richland, Columbia; Ruff and Ready, Randolph; Sunk Land, Craighead; Sweet Home, Pulaski, Tyler, Prairie; White's Mill, Garland.

General Assembly—G. Riles, contestant, was seated as Representative from Pulaski County, vice E. L. Maynard.

Nevada—Prescott is the county site, not Rosston, as stated in table between pp. 72-3

Hot Spring County—Malvern is the county site—not Rockport, as stated in table.

Desha County—Arkansas City is the county site, made so since the table was printed.

Congressional Districts—By act of the Legislature, passed after the foregoing pages were printed, the following changes in the Congressional Districts were made:
The Counties of Clark, Hot Spring and Pike taken from the third and added to the Second District.
The Counties of Conway and Pope taken from the Fourth, and added to the Third District.

NOTICE.

The delay in the appearance of the YEAR BOOK has not been the fault of the compiler.

Friends throughout the State are requested to advise me of any inaccuracies or errors in the foregoing pages which need correction.

The YEAR BOOK for 1880, will appear before the close of the present year; and will be in changed form and about five times the bulk of the present volume. Contributions on any subject of general interest are invited. If used they will be paid for. Directory advertisements of one line, including one copy, will be inserted for one dollar. Special terms can be made for longer advertisements.
